for Fis holy same, that we may hope to be rescued, at he distant day, from the dangers and the fearful evils that surround us. And with our prayers and thankagivings let us bring some substantial token of their sincerity. On a day when we remember with special soccities the Divine goodness in bestowing upon as agricative fruits of the earth" and all the other blessings of the merital providence; may we not torget our herothers and risters who are naked or destitute of daily flood. Especially let us not forget those who are he sickness as well as in want. In former years the collections made on Thankagiving flay in our several churches have been an e-sential help to ear heapital in this city, which is mainly devoted to the dare of sock and wounded who are in destitute circumstances. Touching instances might be given of the extended and effective way in which such offerings have contributed to the spiritual as well as bodily comfort of musiculates who, without such ministry, must have been left to suffer, and often to die, without succor and without house to be the contributed of the spiritual as well as bodily comfort of free beds requires a large lucrease of income, and it is my erroest prayer and hope that, having freely received of the mercies of God, our people may, with faithful hearits, freely give to his suffering children. I would, therefore, affectionately recommand that on Thursday, the 24th day of November, 1894, there he taken up, in every expense of the Hoppital of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Philadelphila.

Our Havana Correspondence.

HAVANA, Nov. 14, 1864. The news from Venezuela and St. Demingo come to hand at so late an hour that I have no time to enter as learn that the province of Guayana still held out in armed opposition, and it would appear that the general government hesitated to come to blows with the insur-gents, and were even talking of some peaceable arrange. ment. From a description which I gave you to a mer letter of this province of Guayana, you can readily understand why the government should besitate; for the mare of war would be doubtful.

The election for President was progressing, and, so far as heard from, the chances were largely in favor of where a reactionary movement had taken place in favor where a reactionary movement had taken place in favor of the late Governor, General Alcantara, the entire Assembly of the State having been thrown into prison by the reactionists. Falcon had been sent for, in the hope that his presence would restore order, which in 'act was the case, for he immediately released the prisoners, restored the Assembly, and bamed a provisional Governor, pending an election for that office.

The cotton crop throughout the sountry promises to be very large, many millions of pounds having been gathered in Aragua, Carabobo, Barcelone, and other provinces.

pathered in Argus, provinces.
From St. Domingo we have no news beyond a skirmish at Puerto Cabello, where, on October 31, the insurgents were driven from some breastworks they had erected on the shere. The Spaniards lost twelve men. The battainon of volunteers from Puerto Rico, goven hundred strong, had arrived at Monte Christi, a proof that the war

We must accept as positive the supposition that the iom has failed, for we have the most convincing proof in the continuence of hostilities. During the hot season attempt at a peaceable solution of the St. Domingo probthere was an apparent cessation of active operations in the field; and because these were paralyzed at the time and peace spoken of, it was supposed that Saleedo had actually ordered the insurgents to lay down their arms. With gooler weather, and at the first movement of the Spanjards from behind the shelter of their works, where rifle and the war cries ringing out as loudly as ever. It en returned, though some certainly have; and though the Dominican leaders have quarrelled among themthe activity of their followers in the field. A lotter from St. Domingo City, dated November 5, contains the latest news we are in possession of, and teforms us that the province of Seybo, where the famous teforms us that the province of Seybo, where the famous Santana were out his life in unceasing efforts at subjugation, and as unceasingly proclaimed victory and pacification, this very seme Seybo, shree times completely overtun by the Spaniards, is again awarming with armed bands, and again invites her buffled enemies to accept battle among her rocks and forests. This letter tells us how a party of native troops drove a party of insurgents from the village of Cuey, which was reoccupied as soon as the former marched back to their camp at Higuey. Again they returned, and again were the insurgents driven away to the cries of "Spain and the Virgin of Alta gracia." Then we are told "the pacification of Seybo has progressed much within the last few days, and General Callejs is displaying much sagasity and ability in his command.

Historiam talem aliquantulam credere quis vult, l'atrue amorem nondum intelligit inte.

Historiam talem aliguantulem credere quis vuit,

Patrus amorem nondum intelligit iste.

The quotation may not be quite correct, since the eriginal is not at hand to consuit, but the idea is good and very applicable, yet Spain is unwilling to give 'up the contest, and will continue it, as I predicted a year ago, intti she has lost the flower of her army and fifty millions of doliars. Then she will be forced to let the patric amorem of the Dominicans have its way. Of late a new motive has been discovered to urise a continuance of the war, not in the least more solid or satisfactory than the old excuse of Spanish glory and Castihau honor. This new idea is ventilated in a letter published in Spain by Don Manuel Buccts, the general who, you may remember, once got "separated" from his command in the beginning of the Doninican war. The General, who, from his experience in St. Domingo, ought to be a competent judge, opens his arrument in favor of the war by an admission which as a less classic expression, knocks him higher than a kite. He says ——

"I betieve sincerely that the possession of that province is a mondary columnty. I betieve that its receipts will never a fice to cover ordinary expenses; but I believe also that it is a calamity which must be borne, because neversary to the preservation of Cuba and Fuerto Risco, and that the abandonment. In case it should be effected, would be a calamity infinitely greater, which our country would soon lament."

Wait; don't laugh yet, for there is another part of the joke to come. After nearly two mortal columns of ex-planations in regard to the great love of the Dominicans for the Spaniards, and how the present revolution origi-nated around the Frotestant natives of Samana and Fuerto Placa, because their houses of worship were closed against them, he says:—

"If the abandonment of that new acquisition should be brought about, and, as would pretably be the case, the American flag substitute carrier in the towers of St. Domingo, you may rest assured we shall have lost our influence in America, and have taught the enemies of Cuba and Puerto Rico that to conquer us it would suffect to sustain an ir-regular war in dense woods, carefully avoiding engaging to nitchned encounters."

This is very silly stuff. General Bussia.

in hickned encounters."

This is very silly stuff. General Buceta is a very brave officer, for he has proved it in Morocco and at Domingo; but he cannot direct a nation's points. If I am not missisched there was a party in existence in St Domingo not many years since, aguitating annexation to the United States, but whose overtures were rejected by Congress. The idea, therefore, that the possession of that issand is necessary to the preservation of the others to the crown of Spain is propenterous, even it is never had been discovered that fighting in dense woods was a good way to annihilate armies.
